

Atlantic Plane Crashes On Island

12 DIE 30 SECS FROM SAFETY

"People" Reporter, Shannon Airport, Saturday.

TWELVE people perished, only 30 seconds from safety, when the Trans-World Airline Constellation plane, "Star of Cairo," crashed early this morning on a small island in the Shannon river, less than three miles from Shannon Airport.

The aircraft, on a trip from Paris to New York, broke her back on crashing and then exploded, throwing those on board in all directions.

Of the fourteen passengers, nine were killed, including three women. Three of the crew of nine perished. None of them was British.

Among the injured was Mrs. Edith Dalby, the French-born wife of a G.I. who was flying with her 18-week-old baby to join her husband in New York. Mrs. Dalby was badly burned and had leg injuries. Her condition tonight was critical. Her baby also had a burned face and a broken thigh. He was said tonight to be recovering.

The plane left Paris at midnight and crashed into an uninhabited swampy island shortly after 2 a.m. A great blinding flash that turned night into day, and a crash that shook the foundations of the airport buildings, gave the first news of the disaster to staff waiting for the plane at the Shannon airport. Then flames soared up hundreds of feet into the air.

Rescue squads, speedily mobilized, set out for the spot. Among them was Capt. T. S. Harrington and his air-crew, who had been waiting to take off another plane. At times they sank knee-deep in the swamp.

When we first arrived in the unbelievable mud," he said, "we found that there was a river to be crossed."

"After some difficulty, we hooked up local boatsmen and they ferried us across in flat-bottomed boats."

Another rescue was Dr. James O'Boyle, the Shannon airport doctor.

We had to struggle through mud for two hours before reaching the scene of the crash," he told us. "We found the plane completely disintegrated and the dead and in the living scattered around the wreckage."

The least injured was a twenty-five-year-old housewife, Miss Catherine Ferguson, of New York, who was holding baby Delany in her arms.

One of the first people to arrive on the island after the crash, Michael Donnellan, a servant boy on a nearby farm, said: "I was making in the direction where I heard a baby crying, when I fell over several injured people who were moaning."

"I found baby Delany in the rubble by the river-side. He had been blown clear out of the plane by the explosion."

"As I got to it the air hostess arrived and took the baby. Still clutching it, she tried to attend to the injured."

One of the dead was a young woman in a milk coat. Another was Professor Alexander.

Worst Year Ever In Air: 700 Killed

THIS has been the world's worst year for air crashes. Since January 1, more than 700 people have been killed, either in crashes of civil transport planes or military planes on regular transport runs.

In the last four months the number killed in major crashes have been: September 1945: October 120; November 194; and December 116.

Worst day of the year was Christmas Day, when 62 lives were lost. The German plane crashed in the fog at Shanghai, and the deadliest of the year was a week alone in more than 100.

2 Dead, 21 Hurt In U.S. Air Crash

The pilot and co-pilot were killed and 21 passengers injured when a Constellation plane crashed-landed near Michigan City, Indiana State, this afternoon.

The 21 passengers are in hospital—Merrill.

Paris, Saturday. REPORTING police investigations into the primary cause of the accident is still under way.

The plane travelled some distance in contact with the ground until there was a fire and explosion in portions of the scattered wreckage.

The passengers and crew members were scattered over a considerable area, and rescue work was made extremely difficult due to the darkness and the inaccessibility of the crash area.

Yellow Peril

WE hope you'll forgive a brief sentimental excursion as the Old Year dies. We're not as cynical and hard-boiled as this column may, at times, suggest.

We spent the last three New Year's Eves away from Britain—in Egypt, in the Sahara, and in Singapore, dreaming each time of the year we should be home again listening to the bells of London ringing out the Old Year and ringing in the New.

Now the dream has come true, and it still looks pretty good to us. We shall raise a glass at midnight on Tuesday and drink to 1945 with a high heart.

For we believe that it will take us all round the corner to that brighter, better future we all want.

MY New Year wishes: To Bruce Woodcock—more power to your pen.

To King Solomon—Joe Louis' name on the dotted line.

To Gordon Richards—a place on the rails at Tottenham Center on Derby day.

To Wally Hammond—a couple of ducks for Bradman.

To Freddie Miller—no more Bakula's.

To Bud Flanagan—another Alibi.

To Sid Field—another 1946.

UNFORTUNATELY I ordered an American paper, the "Wilson Star," which has a picture of a white puppy. Call at Hot Stand, Hammersmith.

WE admired the police of a cool, dry, arid, urban, hospitable party was beginning to get a little rowdy at a Piccadilly club.

They had started one of those Congo lines around the tiny bandstand.

They were rapidly developing into a free-for-all, and her red-faced, perspiring escort was vainly trying to persuade her to join in.

"Haven't you got any sporting blood in your veins?"

"Certainly," said the blonde telly. "But I don't particularly want to spill any of it."

STILL on ice—the elaborate party of my article, rone-checked little Carl Heilmann, brains behind the Mecca dance hall chain, to reopen the ritz Café de Paris as London's smartest, swankiest night spot.

The Café de Paris, bombed on a spring evening in 1941, has been run as a club for Service men and women for the last two years and a half.

Heilmann, having the lease, is ready to spend $50,000 on furnishings, is only waiting for the premises to be decontaminated to get cracking.

Carl, who came to England

ing in fluent Covent Gardenese! "No one suspected them," an eye witness told me. They were using such picturesque language that they were taken for regular Garden porters."

NO ONE seems to have included his favorite story in the spate of anecdotes reprinted in the last issue of that lovable old comic W. G. Fields.

It concerns an occasion when he was stranded with a touring company in a Middle West town where whisky was unobtainable.

Describing their ordeal afterwards, Fields said mournfully: "We lived for days on nothing but food and water."

Plumes To Your Waist, Madam!

Los Angeles hat-designers are jealous of the freaks that New York hat-makers put on the heads of their customers.

So next spring Los Angeles women will wear plumes to the waist, flowers wrapped in cellophane, streamers and multi-colored bonnets.

Like Robert of Seattle, U.S.A., has three sets of teeth, aged eleven, her baby teeth have not yet fallen out. Lilly is going to have an operation soon, for her mother says: "I think she's got to be a comedian."

Albert Price, of California, was accused of hit-traiting his house. He denied it, and said the house was found of him and would follow him—any day.

Then Albert left the courtroom and brought in his home. It had followed him into the building into the elevator and down the stairs to the judge. Case dismissed.

Quails

READERS ask for the most important national events of 1947: 1. A blow-out affecting the Government soon. Main cause, Foreign policy. We have not heard the end of the famous revolt. Splitting like a hot air balloon, it is bound to burst.

2. Charities are not information: this has been associated with General Elections are persistent, especially during the Autumn.

3. Speculation on the abolition of grace charges against famous people associated with the recent war, and lost from public life of such men.

4. A show-down affecting the T.U.C. perhaps not unlike the American situation. Crucial year for Trade Unions and Government.

5. Unusual reforms introduced by unusual legislation, with changes in Parliamentary and other procedure causing a stormy crisis.

6. Biggest turn in census of the year, focusing on mid-April and eventually affecting every one of our citizens. The census will be taken in the form of a questionnaire. Financial measures. Few departments of life will remain unchangeable.

7. Distinct new wave of national feeling.

BRIEF BIRTHDAY INDICATIONS (Applying to those whose anniversaries occur this week)

TODAY—Festivals to come to a close. The day is devoted to slow down progress, especially in the form of a questionnaire. Financial measures. Few departments of life will remain unchangeable.

TOMORROW—Expectant year for as far as the future is concerned. The day is devoted to slow down progress, especially in the form of a questionnaire. Financial measures. Few departments of life will remain unchangeable.

FIRST FOR MANCHESTER SINCE 1939

BRISTOL CITY'S ONE OVER THE EIGHT

By TOM MORGAN
I was a footballer last night about the sight of a ball, a goal net, a referee and all the paraphernalia that goes with a game. Four matches in eight days at a point of a hundred, but I think I shall never again see a footballer in a pair of boots.

A famous old footballer once told me that some picked up a football, and some others picked up a football. That being so, things must be looking bright for Stockport, Manchester City, Manchester and West. I think I shall never again see a footballer in a pair of boots.

Wolves are proving the magnet of football. They were at the top of the league last night. Yesterday it was the other way round. Wolves were at the top of the league last night. Yesterday it was the other way round.

Possible like 3,000 people were locked out of the stadium. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace.

As a result, the match was a draw. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace.

On the other hand, the match was a draw. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace.

Blackburn are probably the biggest team in the league. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace.

Manchester City are probably the biggest team in the league. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace.

It was their own fault. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace. The crowd was so big that the police had to be called in to keep the peace.
